

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, “Even if all fall away, I will not.” Jesus says, “Before the morning, you will deny me three times.” Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, “Even if all fall away, I will not.” Jesus says, “Before the morning, you will deny me three times.” Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, “Even if all fall away, I will not.” Jesus says, “Before the morning, you will deny me three times.” Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, “Even if all fall away, I will not.” Jesus says, “Before the morning, you will deny me three times.” Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
 March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, "Even if all fall away, I will not." Jesus says, "Before the morning, you will deny me three times." Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?

Sequoyah Hills Presbyterian Church
Knoxville, Tennessee
Rev. Mark Lampley
March 15, 2020

“Betrayed: Lessons in the Valley”
Gen. 27:1-13, Mark 14:32-42

Christ suffers with us and for us. To begin to grasp his love, his salvation, his balm, we look to the CROSS. We look at what happened to Jesus during his last week before his death and resurrection. What motivates Jesus to suffer for us, even endure betrayal?

In our sermon series, we've been studying how Mark 14 describes this stressful week of trials, the time around the Jewish festival called the Passover. Let's remember what's already happened in this chapter, including the rich symbolism of the land.

Starting on Sunday in Bethany, just past the Mt. of Olives, a woman anoints Jesus with fragrant oil. Then Judas, one of the 12 disciples, went to the chief priests to betray Jesus. Cross the Kidron valley and up the hill to Jerusalem. We later have Jesus with the disciples in the upper room. Jesus said, “Woe to the one who betrays the Son of Man. It would be better for them if they had not been born.”

Across the valley again, on the Mount of Olives, a few days later Peter boldly claims, “Even if all fall away, I will not.” Jesus says, “Before the morning, you will deny me three times.” Back in the valley, the valley, on the following Sunday, in a garden called Gethsemane, Peter and the other disciples betrayingly sleep while Jesus urges them to pray, to find hope!

This is where we pick up in the narrative of Mark 14:32-42.

[Invited to pray, let us do so, together]: “In these perilous times, O God, THY will be done, for you are our Rock & Redeemer.”

In the darkness of the night, in the valley, maybe Jesus had a song stuck in his head. One helping him remember how to carry on through trials. As Pastor Jay suggested last week, it could be the Jewish hymn traditionally sung at the end of the Passover meal from the songbook we call Psalm 136, “For God’s steadfast love, endures forever.”

Down in life’s valleys, we all need good songs stuck in our heads, rocks of truth, anchors to hold onto.

From this passage, I want to lift up two rocks that help us navigate life. Each are telling to our human condition of fear, revealing our lack of trust, enlightening us about our betrayal, but also about God’s pathway of hope.

The first rock is that through word and deed, Jesus proves his faithfulness overcomes the disciples' unfaithfulness. We, like the disciples, all fall away, unable to fully obey despite high intentions and earnest commitments. In contrast to the disciples and our failure to follow, Jesus steadfastly follows the will of God. Jesus never gives up praying to be obedient. Philippians 2 affirms, "Being found in appearance as a man, Jesus humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). His extreme submission leads the way for all to follow, even when pressured and tested.

The Bible often speaks of how we take matters into our own hands. As a consequence, we often betray God and neighbor. In our OT reading, we heard how Rebekah and Jacob connivingly betrayed Isaac. It's sad to see how a mother and son go to great lengths to win power over another family member.

In our NT reading, there is a group of disciples sleeping. If we think about sleep more than with eyes closed sawing logs, then this adds meaning to our Biblical interpretation. When we are asleep, literally or metaphorically, we are unaware of so much. For example, when older teenagers come in later at night than your eyes can stay open, you can be unconscious of realities. But also, we can be oblivious to, or asleep to a truth right in front of us; we can betray by being asleep to God's lesson for us, God's presence around us, snoozing through opportunities to say "YES" to God!

Many of our members have been blessed to go on the Holy Lands pilgrimages led by Bill and Eleanor Barron. We have stopped at this Kidron Valley Church of all Nations built on a rock in the Garden of Gethsemane. Of all the places during that nearly two-week long trip, this Garden visit was the most emotional for me. After hearing the beautiful singing of another traveling group inside the Church, it moved me to humble tears. I was considering how perfectly awake Jesus was to God compared to how short I fall in sin. It took my breath away! It really struck me, his commitment to the alertness of the will of God. He never strayed from God's holy calling. I realized how unfaithful I was and how much of my life was living-for-myself.

In that moment in the garden, it occurred to me I'd been asleep to God's good will so many more times than awake. Despite my slumber, GRACE interceded for me. GRACE intercedes for you!

The second rock, in the valley, is Jesus brings hope by praying in the Kingdom of God. If there is ever a time we need to be confident of what God can do, in our society's fear, then now is the time. We need to pray and stay awake. In light of our corona pandemic, I'm confident many will increasingly turn to God for help. Today is the day to focus on heavenly things more than worldly things.

Normally, the Jewish posture of prayer was standing up, but in the Garden, Jesus prostrates himself, meaning deep agonizing pleas for God's provision, for carrying out God's will, for all humanity's testing after him. His presence and prayer ushers in God's kingdom which is that of peace, that of leading us by green pastures and still waters.

As our Good Shepherd, Jesus sets a table in the presence of our enemies, even air-born viral enemies. Through it all, God proves how faithful and sovereign He has been, He is, and He forever will be.

Lest we think that Jesus cannot relate in our valleys. He was fully human, so he understands our distress and what we are asleep to. Christ shared in every human condition. He shared in all that we face including: fear, alienation, isolation, loneliness, and death. As Paul said, "Christ became poor, so that through his poverty we might become rich."

Jesus struggled with the possibility that he may resist the will of God. His obedience, like ours, was not automatic. His testing in that garden proves he distressed over the willingness to conform. In successfully making that higher calling choice, Jesus demonstrates that he is the Way, the one who goes before us, the gate. He is the gate to the heavenly Kingdom, and no one can enter except through Him (John 3:3, John 14:6).

Now, we've established that Jesus proves his faithfulness, overcomes our unfaithfulness, our slumber. And, we've been reminded Jesus brings hope through bringing in God's kingdom. So, what are we to do about it?

Our response, our third rock of truth, is to remember we are called to conform to God's strength through prayer. We need to wake up to God among us. We are to stay awake to always stay alert. The way of the cross is one of discipleship, of disciplines that start at our Baptism. God calls us to squeeze through the eye of needles, to pray without ceasing, to NOT worry.

Don't get me wrong. It's unrealistic to think we (on our own) can stay awake for long periods of time. Two weeks ago, I spent the better part of the week with my dad in intermediate ICU at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. He was trying to get through double- pneumonia complications. I was taking my shift as a family caregiver. Dad needed me because every hour even through the night there were physical matters to tend to. After 3 nights straight I wore down, I became weak. My own strength gave out, and I couldn't stay awake even for an hour. (I even slept through a fire alarm that got accidentally pulled.) The unfortunate thing is not that I couldn't remain eyes open, it's that I was drawing too much on my own worldly fortitude.

As in many scenarios, Jesus did what we could not do for ourselves. In this case, Jesus stayed awake and alert, even though the disciples did not. We do not.

Although we are often asleep to God's help, we are given second chances. But this grace doesn't let us off the hook. We are called to remain tuned in, seeing with eyes not of this earth, not looking for a kingdom of brick and mortar, rather helping build a kingdom far greater! Something that helps us and others withstand the trials and storms and uncertainties of the future; to help others who seek desperately for guidance.

In this season of repentance, we can commit anew, with God's help, to follow Christ, who loves us, who showed us the way. Remember the word Gethsemane. It means valley of decision. So, will we stay awake and choose to trust in God's way?